

Sisterhood

A tribute to the doe who didn't run away from me

In your shy eyes I saw questions.
Vital ones.
In your wide eyes I explored miles and miles.
At the speed of light.
In your eyes I discovered love.
At first sight.

No earthquake. No sound.
No collision with my heart.
This love blew a breeze of softness.

I stayed still so you could observe me.
There were no expectation.
In your eyes I saw relief rising.
In your eyes I discovered love.

A true love.

As real as the apple I eat while writing.
As real as our two bodies standing still.

I am an actress, dancer, director and author.

I am passionate about languages and fluent in English and Russian. I have studied Latin and French Sign Language and am currently learning Hindi. Additionally, I have directed bilingual shows, showcasing my ability to integrate multiple languages in my work.

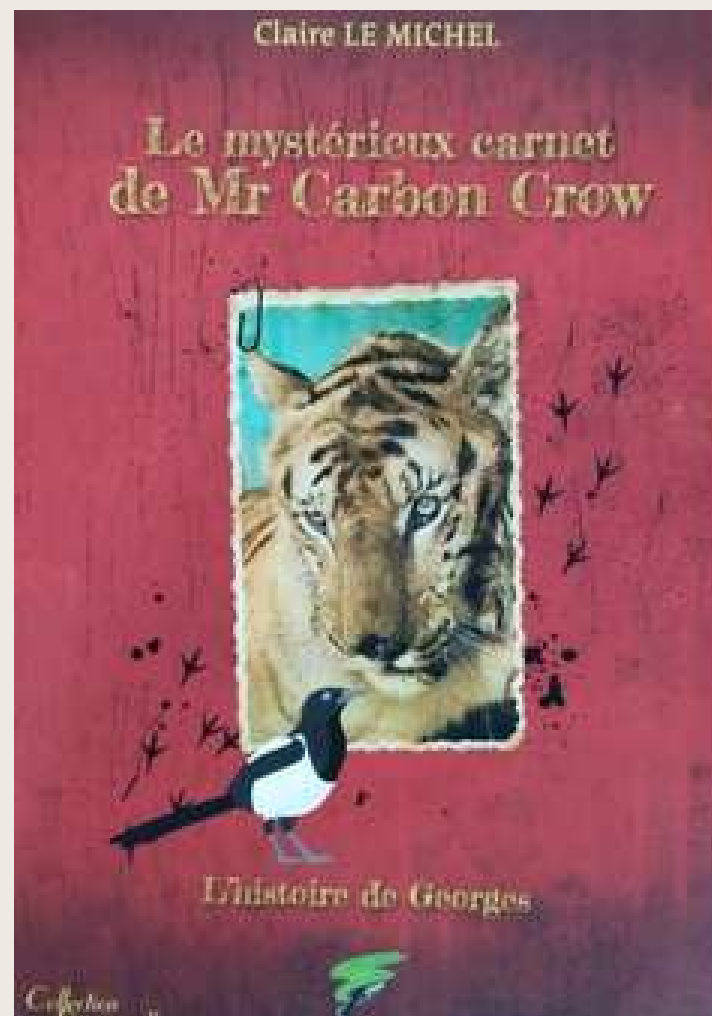

I create for both adults and children, whether through writing or dancing, and this extends to my workshops and courses.

Teaching is a crucial part of my creative process. Since the start of my career, I have been leading dance and writing workshops, which have transformed my approach to my work.

My performances have become increasingly interactive and collaborative with the audience.

I write like I
dance, listening to the flow of life.

I am conducting research on living beings and the way we, humans, are connected to everything that lives
through rhythm, sound, and movement.
